

Miss Eunice James to Be Married to Henry E. Coe, Jr.

Dr. and Mrs. Walter B. James Announce Their Daughter's Engagement.

Dr. and Mrs. Walter B. James of 7 East Seventieth street announced yesterday the engagement of their daughter, Miss Eunice James, to Mr. Henry E. Coe, Jr., second son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Coe of this city and Southampton, L. I. The engagement is one of the most interesting of the early winter. Miss James, who was introduced to society a year ago, was graduated from the Porter School in Farmington, Conn., and she is a member of the Colony Club. She comes of a distinguished family on both sides. Her father is one of the leading physicians and surgeons of this city. Mrs. James is a sister of Messrs. Walter and Oliver Gould Jennings, Messrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss and Miss Anna Burr Jennings. Mr. Oliver B. James, who married Miss Angelina J. Kreck, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James.

Mr. Coe was graduated from Yale in 1917 and is a member of the Skull and Keys. He also is a member of the Racquet and Tennis Club of this city, and during the year has served in France. Mr. Coe's father has a country place in Huntington, L. I., not far from that of Dr. and Mrs. James, which is in Cold Spring Harbor. The Coe family for many years have been identified with Southampton, their estate there, known as the Appletrees, being one of the oldest in that resort and the scene of many of the social and sporting events of the city. Mr. Coe is one of the few men who keep up interest in the horse, and frequently during the summer he takes out his four-in-hand to a drag or coach, and nothing but the worst kind of weather prevents his daily drive. Mrs. Coe is a daughter of the late John Taylor Johnston, one of the foremost of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, and in his day one of the foremost patrons of art and music in this city. She is a sister of Mr. Robert W. de Forest, Mr. Pierre Mallory, Mr. J. Herbert Johnston, the other members of the Coe family are Miss Rosalie Coe and Mr. Colles J. Coe. No date has been set for the marriage.

MISS KATHARINE BLISS ENGAGED TO MR. BOKER

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs.
Walter P. Bliss to Be Bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Phelps Bliss of Westover, Barnardville, N. J., and 6 East Eighty-seventh street, New York, yesterday announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Katharine B. Bliss, to Mr. Herman D. Boker of this city. Miss Bliss was introduced to society three years ago and is a member of the Junior League. She is an older sister of Miss Sibylla Bliss, who will be formally married to the friends of her family on the night of December 1, by her elder sister, Mrs. Hermann C. Schwab, at a dance which will be given by Mrs. Schwab, as Mrs. Bliss is in mourning this winter. Mr. Boker is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Frederick Boker of 29 East Sixty-ninth street and Seabright, N. J. He is a member of the Junior League and is a member of the Junior League. She is an older sister of Miss Sibylla Bliss, who will be formally married to the friends of her family on the night of December 1, by her elder sister, Mrs. Hermann C. Schwab, at a dance which will be given by Mrs. Schwab, as Mrs. Bliss is in mourning this winter. Mr. Boker is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Frederick Boker of 29 East Sixty-ninth street and Seabright, N. J. He is a member of the Junior League and is a member of the Junior League.

O'CONNOR-DANIELS.

Before the altar at which her mother was christened, confirmed and married Miss Helen Daniels and Mr. Charles M. O'Connor were married yesterday in the Church of St. John the Evangelist, First Avenue and Fifty-fifth street. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Patrick F. O'Connor, fire chief of New York.

GIVES FIRST OPERA RECITAL.

Mrs. Bready's Subject Is Strauss's
"Rosenkavalier."

Mrs. George Lee Bready gave the first in her series of ten Wednesday morning opera recitals at the Plaza yesterday before a large and interested audience. Her subject was Richard Strauss's "Rosenkavalier," which will be revived by Mr. Gatti-Casazza to-morrow night. Mrs. Bready said that Strauss is the greatest of all composers of any composition at the present time, and that Percy Grainger calls him "an idealist."

She intimated that among Strauss's several operas his "Rosenkavalier" is an outstanding success. The score, she stated, is one of the largest among modern operas and with large portions devoted to stage direction. She spoke of the work as "comedy of music" and one bordering on the burlesque; that with waltzes, some of which is superb, there is found in it a beautiful and again quite the reverse. At the piano Mrs. Bready illustrated her explanation of the text.

Challapin Sings in Noble Style as Tragic Boris Elemental Impersonation by Russian Basso at the Metropolitan.

By W. J. HENDERSON.

For the second night of the subscription season, which was last night, Mr. Gatti-Casazza offered the patrons of the Metropolitan Opera House nothing less than Mousorgsky's somber opera "Boris Godunov," with the mighty Feodor Chaliapin as the usurper. The impresario's policy of hitting the public squarely between the eyes in the very opening of the season betrays a delightful confidence in his ability to hold his own till the close of the twenty-three rounds of opera. Mr. Chaliapin, of course, is not to have any monopoly of the role of Boris or of Mefistofele, in which he is to appear on Saturday afternoon, and possibly his engagements in other parts of the country made it imperative to put him forward thus early.

He was first heard here in Mous-orgsky's tragic work on December 9 of last year. His impersonation better deserves the term elemental than does the opera, for it is a piece of acting in which the sheer overwhelming force of untrammeled virility is the conquering agent. There is much art in the delineation and in the singing.
Indeed Mr. Chaliapin's vocal methods on the concert platform result in shattering of melodic lines and alteration of personality and his power as an actor make him a huge operatic figure.

When he revealed his Boris last year, it was said in this place that much of the dialogue and much of the monologue ran to parlando and often to actual speech. But the utterance was always filled with passion and power. "There was no phase of the anguish of the remorse-tortured soul that escaped the searchlight of this brutal art." It is no exaggeration to say that the operatic stage has furnished no such portrayal of the agonies of a soul since Tamagno's Otello.

Mr. Chaliapin can sing musically, broadly and in a fluent legato style when he wishes to do so as proved by his delivery of the speech of Boris to the people in the first act.
It was a truly noble piece of lyric delineation, equalled only by his voicing of the monologue in the chamber of the traitorous Schouisky. The czar's little family party consisted of Mme.
De-launay as the wife, the usurper's treacherous, Miss Dalosy represented the unimportant daughter and Miss Perini was their nurse.

Mr. Papi conducted the performance with diligence, but hardly with distinction, though the orchestra played well. Giulio Sottis' capable chorus contributed to the impressive performance by some really excellent singing.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Golet's guests were Mr. and Mrs. Beverley Bogart and Mr. and Mrs. William May Wright.
With Mr. and Mrs. Stephen H. P.
Pell in the Kahn box were Mrs. Leale Pence Townsend, Mrs. Truxton Beale, Prince Eugene Lubomirski, nephew of the Polish Minister, and the Marquis Buguine.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Davis, Col. and Mrs. Edward M. House and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence L. Gillette were with Mr. and Mrs. James B. Cleve, Mr. and Mrs. George Barton French's guests in the Steele box were Mr. and Mrs. Enrique Zanetti, Mr. Lawrence Dilworth and Mr. Frank H. Markoe.

The Viscountess Maitland and Mrs.
Frederic Parsons of Paris were with Mr. and Mrs. S. J. de la Roche.
Mrs. J. Russell Soles, Mrs. Henry S.
Redmond, Mr. Stuyvesant Fish and Mr.
Franklin A. Plummer were Mrs. Hamilton McK. Twombly's guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hilton Brown and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert M. Hyde were guests of Mr. E. Francis Hyde.

With Mrs. Arthur Ryle were Mr. and Mrs. George Pratt, Mr. and Mrs. A. E.
Franklin, Mr. Frederic Potts Moore and Mr. A. Morris Hagby.

Mrs. George G. DeWitt, Mrs. Arthur R. Twombly, Miss Sarah A. Brown, Messrs. George Ledlie, Percy Bramwell and Charles E. Sampson were with Mr.
Shipley Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Michalis, Miss Dorothy Stewart and Dr. George D.
Stewart were with Dr. and Mrs. Ernest Fahnestock.

With Miss Louise Sands in the Huntington box were Mrs. Felix Doubleday, Mrs. Cole Porter, Messrs. Alfonso de Navarro, Archibald H. Hutchinson, Jr., and Ashbel H. Barney.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Robinson Smith,

Paris, Nov. 15.
Andrew D. Little, dean of the American colony of Paris, died this afternoon, aged ninety. His death followed that of his wife at Chatelet-Guyon last August, since when Mr. Little steadily grew weaker. He had lived in Paris for sixty-five years, coming in 1857 as the representative of the dry goods firm of Jaffray & Sons. Later he became the European representative of H. P.
Clafin & Co., with whom he remained until ten years ago.

During the month of Paris in 1870 he met Mrs. Frank Hastings Hamilton, prominent in the American colony, and married her three years later. Mr.
Little was an intimate friend of Whittaker and one of the founders of the American Church of the Holy Trinity here, where he was senior warden for many years. He was also a chevalier of the Legion of Honor for his charitable works.

Mr. Little was born in Montrose, Scotland, where he was taken to the United States when eighteen months old.
His elder daughter, who studied for grand opera and sang at the Opera Comique, also sang at the Metropolitan Opera in this country, under the name of Julie Lindsay, became the wife of Georges Lambert of the Paris Temps.

W. H. VANDERBILT WILL CELEBRATE MAJORITY

To Give Birthday Party Next Week at Oakland Farm.

Mr. William H. Vanderbilt, third of his name and son of the late Alfred G.
Vanderbilt, will be twenty-one years old November 24, when by his father's will he will come into possession of Oakland Farm, his father's extensive Newport estate, which he will take over in the spring, starting November 23, and continuing over the following week-end.
Guests from New York have been invited to join another party of friends from Boston.

Under the terms of his father's will Mr. Vanderbilt received the power of appointment in a trust fund valued at $4,612, in addition to the income of the trust, which is an extensive plantation of a few miles from Newport proper.
In the center stands a large mansion.
For the maintenance of Oakland Farm, which is a beautiful estate, Mr. Vanderbilt has received a further life interest in $400,000.

Last month Mr. Vanderbilt decided to make banking his career and entered the employ of the United States Trust Company with the intention of perfecting himself in all branches of finance by starting at the lowest of the scale.

His mother now is the wife of Mr. Fitz Simons, who at the time of his marriage with Mrs. Ellen French Vanderbilt was a lieutenant in the United States Navy.

Paris, Nov. 15.
Paul Fletcher Cadman, an American fellow of the University of Paris, this afternoon was awarded the French state doctorate of laws on his thesis, "The Role of the Contractor in the Reorganization of American Industry."

Mr. Cadman is a graduate of the University of California, a Phi Delta Theta member and the second American fellow to receive a doctorate, the other being Prof. Albert Noyes of the University of Illinois, who was granted a science doctorate two years ago.

It was announced today that two more Americans are to receive the honorary degree of doctor of laws from Sorbonne University November 25.
These are Ellis H. Root and Dr.
Lawrence Lowell, president of Harvard University. As both are unable to attend they will be represented by Ambassador Herrick.

AMERICAN ARTISTS' CONCERT.

Mme. Margaret Nikolic, pianist, with J. Steel Jamison, tenor, and Walter Mills, baritone, gave a concert in Town Hall last evening under the auspices of the American Artists' Series, directed by Miss Betty Thillson.

Organized for the purpose of bringing young American artists of merit before the public, the American Artists' Series promises to be a valuable outlet for youthful talent during the current musical season. Mr. Jamison offered two groups of songs, including an aria from "Le Roi d'Ys," two selections from Strauss and Schubert's ever familiar "Who Is Sylvia?" Mr. Jamison's voice pleasing, and one measure power and depth of feeling.

Mme. Nikolic played Rachmaninov's prelude in G minor and compositions by Debussy, Chopin, Brahms and Cowell.
Mr. Mills offered two groups of songs by Scarlatti, Secchi, Carissimi and several English and American compositions with a voice capable of much feeling and possessing excellent diction. The young singer was enthusiastically applauded by the audience.
